

A ceramic base material that is reduced in distortion caused by high-temperature heat treatment. A ceramic base material having sintering agents and satisfying the following formula:

m: the fluorescent X-ray-detected strength of the main-constituent elements.